With Various Countries.

Washington, Feb. 11.—The promotion of commercial relations between this country and those with which it has diplomatic intercourse is sought by Secy. of State Knox. Mr. Knox will soon transmit, it is said, to representatives of the United States in other countries letters containing his wishes. The secretary, it is said, is not disposed to place diplomacy upon a plane so elevated that a telescope would be necessary for those occupying it to descry a business opportunity far below. He considers it an important function of ambassadors, ministers and consuls to keep in touch, in a measure, with the foreign trade, and do all within their power to advance the commercial interests of the United States. Foreign fields for American products are desired by the secretary. He wants American representatives to use their best endeavors in opening these fields.
